at least 40 hours

The discovering and learning process of the fundamentals of CCI co-counselling shifts from the present to the past and from the past back to the present and into the future, using the techniques and realising the new insights into practical actions. The centre of the whole process of producing order in what seems to be a complete chaos of not knowing, is permission to be and to act in the way that seems appropriate to you. This healing permission, offered by the mystery of unconditional attention of another human being, seems to be the core of the growth into new insights.
