another approach....

'How to attract people into the CCI approach' is often an item when two or more CCI co-counsellors are together. It very well may be myself, who brings this item into a sharing. Though my impression is, that I am not the only one - among CCI trainers - who is triggered by that question. And all kinds of arguments to meet that question comes up. For sure, it would be nice if the CCI communities do grow faster. That offers the more possibilities to session! And that is healthy for everybody. The reality is that not everybody likes to act on that insight...

Among all kinds of reasons why this does not speed up as much as I would like, some arguments come back year after year continue clear communication

a simple, easy, healing process go for the CCI approach!

The 40.000 languages on our planet are a perfect sample of the human intelligence and need to share what we experience. Seven thousand of these languages are - according to the Google internet searching machines - nowadays spoken by some 5.7 billion people of a total of 6.8 billion. This indicates that this intelligence and this need to share, are of all times and of all human beings. This need also fits perfectly in with the three basic needs within the CCI approach: 1) to love and to be loved, 2) to understand and to be continue snapshots of CCI Europe 2007

Soesterberg August 4th CCI Europe 2007 is over. The 11 organizers of this event meet for the last time at the spot; the celebration of the dance of live is over for now. The names of dances of the working spaces are removed and we take our experiences home. And now the building is empty. Snapshots of moments of this CCI remembers and give some impressions of the atmosphere. CCI Europe 2007 is special, as CCI international meetings are! The coming days again more about this event.

again 'a CCI sign language'

The recent introduction of 'a CCI sign language' started at the CCI teachers meeting just before CCI Europe 2007. Fifteen teachers of 5 different countries came to Donkerbroek (the Netherlands) and by programming that meeting together, the first evening, the offer was 16 workshop items for Saturday July 28th. Most of them were limited to 15 minutes each about 'what works in their teaching'. One of them was about 'a CCI sign language' to teach at fundamental training at the moment that that special technique is part of the teaching. And the first workshop at the meeting of CCI Europe on Monday July 30, announced as a 'CCI track' workshop, was about practising this sign language. In practising the continue the history of CCI (3)

'News letters, CCI's and other nationwide meetings enable and support communication processes' is written in the German book about co-counselling that Siglind Willms and Johannes Risse are going to publish. They continue: 'There are two examples, that show how it works: The first one is the process of a revised definition of co-counselling, which, for John Talbut was a turning point in the development of co-counselling in England. The second is the way co-counsellors become teacher nowadays: continue

The description of the history of CCI in the UK - as recorded in the coming book in German by Siglind Willms and Johannes Risse about this history - starts with a description of this history in England. 'As described already in the beginning of this chapter, John Heron got to know co-counselling in 1970, when he visited a conference of the British Association of Social Psychiatry.

the United Kingdom - England

There he met Tom Sheff, an American professor of sociology, who introduced him to RC co-counselling. John Heron at once was ready to learn and practise it. He became an RC-teacher the same year by accreditation of Harvey Jackins who, soon after that accredited him as reference person for Europe, because - perhaps - he saw the possibility to bring co-counselling to Europe this way. continue
